As you may have heard, Charter, Time Warner Cable, and Bright House Networks announced two agreements that will combine the companies. An explanation of what this means for consumers and the industry, along with the terms and conditions of the transaction, can be found in the attached press release and fact-sheet.

The “New Charter” will combine the “best of the best” of all three companies to offer consumers and businesses superior broadband and video services at competitive prices. We look forward to talking to you about the transaction.

Good morning Diana:

Here is the draft e-mail that is being used for distribution of the information. I spoke with Ed and we agree this is not mandatory since most of our governments are under the impression we are already going to Charter or have forgotten about these media deals entirely.

I would like to send courtesy e-mails to our LFAs.
